Commitment to Civility, Respect, and Good Conduct

All councillors serving on Marston Sicca Parish Council are required to adhere to the adopted Code of Conduct, which has been established under Section 27 of the Localism Act 2011. This Code ("the Code") sets the standards for behaviour expected of both members and co-opted members.

The Council holds a statutory responsibility, as outlined in the Act, to foster and uphold high standards of conduct within its membership. These expectations go beyond legal requirements; they reflect the council's longstanding tradition of good manners and mutual respect.

Councillors at Marston Sicca are dedicated to these principles, valuing civility and embracing the diversity of opinions within the council. They are also committed to supporting fellow councillors and staff in their roles.

With a clear understanding of their responsibilities to the wider community, councillors pledge to communicate with all residents in a polite and respectful manner. The council also encourages residents to share in these values, fostering an environment where civility and respect are the foundation of all interactions.
